

ISOLATION MOUNTING SYSTEM FOR RAILROAD CAR STEPS AND RUNNING BOARDS

ABSTRACT

5 A mounting system is provided for securing a metal support surface to a metal bracket on a railroad car. The invention is improved by a compressible, energy absorbing arrangement secured intermediate the support surface and the bracket for preventing metal to metal contact between the support surface and the bracket and absorbing vibrational energy caused by movement of the railroad car.